BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN

Our Royal Visitors

NEW YORK, April 17—The Prince of Wales, accompanied by his suite, arrived in this city at 10 o'clock this morning, and was received at the Hippodrome Company, the Emperor's wife was not present. The Prince appeared to take little notice of the proceedings. Bloody prayed quietly during the entertainment on Tuesday night, and will attend the Young Men's Christian Association, and receive a public reception. The services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Storrs.

The Whereabouts of Missing Bonds

NEW YORK, April 17—It has been ascertained that the first consignment of bonds of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, which have been missing, have gone into the hands of the Rothschilds. The bonds were divided between Speyer Brothers and Morton, Bliss & Co. Both houses have refused to say how much they received, but it is supposed that the amount received by each was about $1,000,000.

The Blaine Reception.

IN THE MATTER OF SALARIES

[illegible] debate on the question of the increase of the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court [illegible] Mr Lamar of Mississippi [illegible] of those who would have the salaries [illegible] For example, in discussing the question of the salary of a Supreme Court Judge [illegible] was generally understood that a Judge ought to receive [illegible] the market price of ability [illegible] It was supposed that [illegible] the Judges [illegible] Mr Lamar put up the question of what per cent assessing such talent will [illegible] in order to ascertain This is putting the case on a false ground The true question to be settled is about this One judge is [illegible] now [illegible] Lamar [illegible] Another is [illegible] Lamar [illegible] perhaps for all the purposes of [illegible] which [illegible] will present a very [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] in competition with men who [illegible] elections in legal training A [illegible] man who by some fortunate combination of circumstances has reached the bench in life from [illegible] of training and [illegible] but it is [illegible] to measure the talents of these men by some sliding scale and pay each according to his actual market value and just as impracticable [illegible] to apply to men of other callings the average market value of talents at the bar and fix the compensation accordingly The theory of measuring the pay of judges by what they could make in other pursuits is radically wrong In all probability Durell could make more money outside than the best judge on the supreme bench, but he was not worth a farthing as a judge His presence on the bench was an injury to the country and a scandal to the profession And how many of the average Congressmen are worth as much to Congress Half of them never are worth [illegible] when they could make a respectable [illegible] in profession A few of them on the other hand have distinguished themselves as successful business men making legitimately more money in a year than the salaries of three Congressmen Others still, with talents of a peculiar sort have made huge piles of money just outside the Halls of Congress, and are not obstructed in the process of acquisition by the burdens which their official duties impose after they are chosen Congressmen All these others should command such salaries as would support those who fill them with becoming dignity, and that should be the measure instead of the fanciful rule of market value They are the representatives of various departments of the national government and ought to be expected to maintain themselves in a style somewhat different from that of mere administration employes The same is true of Cabinet officers, and eminently so of the President The idea of a magnificent court should have no place in the Republican theory of government but the idea of official respectability and dignity should never be lost sight of in any form of government

On the other hand the measure for the compensation of clerks and others who are employed simply to perform certain specified labor, and who represent nothing but so much daily labor, should be the market value of similar services They have, or should have nothing to do with shaping the course of political affairs or giving tone and character to the government They should be paid just what they would receive for similar services in the employ of merchants or banking houses or railway offices

This [illegible] position can [illegible] to have been reached by most of those who took part in the discussions at Washington [illegible] those who did call attention to it got little countenance from the retrenchers of the House of Representatives who inaugurated the famous policy of reducing the burdens of the government by saving the candle ends and apple parings of the civil service

HOW CONKLING SECURED HIS IN DORSEMENT

The managers of the New York State Convention wanted the courage to do their work thoroughly They got through the convention a resolution presenting the name of Senator Conkling as a candidate for President but they did not venture any positive instructions to their delegates Nor did they make sufficient provision for carrying out their expressed preference by selecting a delegation in sympathy with the resolution It is reported that at least half the delegation are opposed hostile to Conkling's aspirations Geo Wm Curtis the editor of Harper's Weekly, is a delegate and leads the opposition His paper is hostile and has personal influence to accompany its words The New York Times says Even in this hostility we can find a moral which is more than a column, shows up the schemes of the Conkling ring From the Times exposure it appears that Conkling's strength in the convention came almost wholly from the districts where the Federal patronage was used to control the local conventions The county delegations and the [illegible] were [illegible] but the [illegible] party at New York [illegible] Senator Conkling [illegible] in the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] Post Office [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

MUSICAL AND LITERARY.

The entertainment and calico leap-year ball given last evening at Turn Halle by the ladies of the German Aid Society for the benefit of the Widow Bailey, was a very successful and pleasant affair The large hall was crowded to repletion, the seating being insufficient to accommodate the audience. The entertainment consisted of tableaux, music—vocal and instrumental—recitations, etc. Those participating acquitted themselves quite creditably and the efforts appeared to meet the approval of the audience, each individual performance receiving hearty applause, and several were encored. Especially worthy of mention was the recitation by Miss Julia Weiser which as an elocutionary effort, was really excellent and for the young lady a meed of applause and a handsome bouquet At the conclusion of the musical and literary portion of the entertainment, the floor was cleared of seats and dancing followed, in which fascinating pastime a large number participated with much zest. Refreshments were served in the dining room in the basement and drinkables were dispensed with a liberal hand The receipts are understood are quite substantial

MURDER AND INCENDIARISM

[illegible] SUPPOSED TO BE CONNECTED WITH THE MURDER AND INCENDIARISM [illegible] DAY MORNING

Found in a burning [illegible] Sunday we learned that the body of Joseph Chinaman was found in a burning French [illegible]

[illegible] Sunday afternoon [illegible] Coroner [illegible] proceeded to the scene of the burning and [illegible] Chinaman [illegible] Upon examination of the premises it was found that the house had been entirely consumed by fire, with the exception of a few boards and the floor. The body was found lying on the floor, with the head resting on the left arm, and the right arm thrown over the head. The body was badly burned, and the clothing was also burned. The coroner's jury, after hearing the evidence, rendered a verdict that the deceased came to his death by the hands of some person or persons unknown.

The Chinaman was a member of the Chinese Six Companies, and was well known in the city. He was a merchant, and had been in business here for many years. He was a man of good character, and was respected by all who knew him.
